LUPUS WARRIOR WEDNESDAY

June 15, 2022

I was diagnosed with lupus almost 20 years ago, but I know I have dealt with it most of my life. Before I was diagnosed, I spent years searching for answers to my puzzling symptoms and experienced the judgement and criticism of people who didn't understand or believe that I was sick, including some in the medical profession. Because of my experience, I believe it is so important to educate people about lupus and support those who live with this disease, because just knowing that we're not alone in this battle can make a huge difference. I'm grateful to LSI for their educational programs, for promoting awareness of lupus, and for their support.
